December 2011

Dear IJAHP Reader:

With this issue, IJAHP celebrates its third year of publication. We have been very active during this period and have started publishing special issues; the first one was dedicated to the status of AHP practice in Brazil and we are currently working on another special issue on the topic of sustainability, scheduled for spring 2012, thanks to the initiative of Fabio DeFelice and the valuable assistance of Antonella Petrillo. More such special issues are planned for the future. A new section called News and Events has been added to keep our IJAHP community abreast of events of interest and here you will find Fabio DeFelice’s report on the success of the ISAHP 2011 conference in June in Sorrento, Italy, and news about Jagiellonian University of Krakow, Poland, awarding Thomas Saaty an honorary doctorate. The current issue has five articles, including the last installment on the topic of the eigenvectors of the AHP/ANP by Stan Lipovetsky and an essay on The Serious Omission of Comparisons from Aristotle’s Laws of Thought by Thomas Saaty.

Enjoy the Holiday Issue!
